

Rapid Data Center Deployments

FGX SHIPPED 50 SEPERATE COMPONENTS OF IT EQUIPMENT FOR TWO DATA CENTERS
50% FASTER THAN BUYING IN MARKET

Our client, a global financial services firm, regularly purchased IT equipment in foreign markets. However, the markups overseas combined with the difficulty in navigating language barriers and time zone differences drove them to find a new option.

The firm decided to reuse surplus equipment already purchased along with new inventory from preferred US vendors, to save time and money.

FGX's world-class operations team took over the logistical management of the upgrade and employed their process-based approach and project management tools to ensure the firm's shipping needs were met.

To save costs, reduce customs clearance time, and ensure all equipment was sent to the correct location, FGX's team liaised with the client, their suppliers, and the manufacturers, to coordinate and consolidate over 50 separate components.

FGX received all equipment at their export preparation center, where their packaging and customs specialists ensured that each shipment was correctly packed and accurately declared so duties and taxes could be pre-paid.

All shipments were scheduled with the receiving offices and datacenters in Europe and then flown directly into Paris & London. Customs cleared the equipment same-day and then dedicated delivery handlers ensured safe transit to the final destination.

Total door-to-door transit time for these shipments was less than 48 hours. Our client saved 10% by purchasing equipment in the U.S. and completed an IT upgrade for two European offices 50% faster.

"FGX made it very easy for my team. The communication was fast, and the shipping was even faster. We saved time and money, that's a win-win for us."
